

Navajo Occupational Safety & Health Administration
The Division of Human Resources
Consultation Request Services Form

Navajo OSHA's Consultation is a voluntary approach to designing safety and health in the workplace. By building upon labor management participation in the onsite consultative survey, consultation can bring workers and employers together to develop and implement continuing programs to control hazards and prevent worker injuries and illnesses. Through such pooled resources and periodic, joint self-inspections, employers and employees together can work to make their jobsites safer and more healthful environments.

If you request the broadest form of assistance, a complete hazard identification consultation, by the completion of the process you will have received:

- An appraisal of all hazards related to processes, equipment, and work practices at your site.
- An appraisal of your present job safety and health management system or guidance in establishing an effective one.
- A conference to review the findings.
- A written report of recommendations and agreements including a List of Hazards found.
- Training and assistance with implementing recommendations.
- A follow-up by the consultant to ensure that any required corrections have been made.

Many Employers say that the Consultation Program was most useful and valuable in:

- ...bringing the fresh perspective of an independent assessment.
- ...identifying what we overlook daily and ways to improve and correct hazardous situations...
- ...helping us recognize our changing work processes and readjusting our safety priorities.
- ...affirming for us that we already had a good safety program.

You may be eligible for this Consultation Service.